ROCKEFELLER CLASS MAKES PROTEST

Its Notices Come by Postal Card and the Irreverent Make Small Jests
—Want Envelopes Used

Protest has been made to President Troxell of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church Bible class, led by John D. Rockefeller Jr., that some of the Rockefeller Bible students are being "guyed" because they are members of the class, says the New York Times. At the same time Mr. Troxell has been informed that the cause of this may be easily removed.

The secretary of the class sends out postal cards to the members. These bear the printed information that they come from young Rockefeller's pet Sabbath institution. As many of the members who receive them live in boarding houses and mingle with outsiders who have a tendency to scoff, they have been grieved from time to time by their unwholly fellow-lodgers.

The postal card notices cost a cent each, exclusive of the cost of ink and the labor of filling in the blank spaces. A cent more spent for postage and a few cents more spent for the cost of paper and envelope would mean the end of the "guying" of the class members by their unconverted boarding house friends and acquaintances.

President Troxell, however, has not been pleased by the complaint because it suggested that there were members of the class not of the mold heroic enough to withstand the baiting of the scoffers. Young Mr. Rockefeller has been cartooned and made fun of all over the world because of his Bible class and his Standard Oil affiliations. But he has not flinched and has frequently declared that he would go ahead and expound the Bible to his class despite the gibes of outsiders.

He has been expounding right along, too, and the class has been trudging to the church through rain and shine every Sunday morning without complaint, until the constant flow of Bible class postal cards in the boarding houses of some of the members began to cause trouble.

John H. Smith, one of the old time members, a man of Scotch descent, poor but a thinker and devout, said yesterday that it began to pall on him to have the man in the large front room adjoining the hall bedroom to ask him regularly every time he got a postal card how many shares of Standard Oil he got for attending the Rockefeller classes.

"These unthinking people bother me," he said, "as they do not doubt many another member, whenever I get a postal card. I am going to try to have the secretary of the class use envelopes and writing paper next year, and when we meet next week I'm going to bring up the matter."

Yesterday was Mr. Rockefeller's last day at Bible teaching until next fall. He said, however, that he did not care to say good-bye now, and had been thinking over some form of entertainment at which all might gather for the farewell. After careful thought he had decided to call a meeting for Monday week, at which they could discuss the work of the last year and the work of the year to come.

The members will therefore gather in the lecture room of the church a week from tonight and wring the hand of their leader in parting. While Mr. Rockefeller leaves town for the heated term most of his fellow class members will cling to their boarding houses and lodgings.

Mr. Rockefeller suggested in his talk yesterday that the members take for their motto this summer, "Watch and Wait."

"When I was coming home last evening," said Miss Skeery, "I saw a man skulking along in the shadow. Oh, how I ran."

"An couldn't you catch him?" inquired her little brother, innocently.—Cleveland Leader.
